

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

In one embodiment, in a peer-to-peer network, data intended to be transferred directly from a first peer node to a second peer node are first redirected to an interception node.

In the interception node, the data may be processed prior to being forwarded to the 5 second peer node. The data may be scanned for virus detection and removal, for example.